

John M. Goode, MBA, Ed.D, CPA, CMA

Dr. Goode has served a Dean of the business schools of De Paul University in Chicago and National University in San Diego. He has taught courses in corporate strategy, business policy, acquisitions and mergers, international finance and economics at Pennsylvania State University, Northwestern University and the University of San Diego. He has also conducted numerous seminars in corporate governance for the IFCD and the Corporate Governance Institute, The AMA and others. Dr. Goode was a faculty fellow at the Brookings Institute and an advisor to the U.S. Department of Commerce in matters of foreign trade for three Secretaries of Commerce. His experience as a corporate director includes more than fifty boards in over 15 countries and in various industries.

He was Vice-Chairman of Venture Industries, a multi-national, multibillion automotive industry company and Senior Vice President-Finance and Corporate Strategy of the J I Case Company, also a multi-national, multi-billion farm and construction machinery company. He was also chairman and CEO of Prestolite Electric Inc., a major international electrical and electronics company.

John is semi-retired but he is currently Chairman and CEO of Sierra Genoa Inc., a small holding company in the defense industry and serves on a couple of boards.

February 2009