Bob Schoultz attended Stanford University on a Navy scholarship, graduating with a BA in Philosophy in December 1974. He was commissioned an Ensign in the Navy and then attended Basic Underwater Demolition/SEAL (BUD/S) training, graduating in the summer of 1975. He subsequently had a thirty year career as a Naval Special Warfare officer, serving in a wide variety of assignments until he retired from the Navy as a Captain on 1 July, 2005

Highlights of his 30 years in the Navy include:

- US Navy Exchange officer for two years with the German Navy SEALs - the Kampfschwimmerkompanie in Eckernfoerde, Germany,
- Commanding Officer of a Naval Special Warfare Unit in Panama, responsible for all SEAL and Special Boat training and operations in Latin America.
- The first Special Operations Chair on the faculty of the Naval War College in Newport, Rhode Island.
- Commander of Naval Special Warfare Group TWO in Little Creek, Va. in charge of all the SEAL Teams on the East Coast.
- Director of Leadership and Character Development at the US Naval Academy

Along the way, he learned to speak German and Spanish, and earned his Master of Arts in National Security and Strategic Studies from the Naval War College. He also served as Operations officer of the premier maritime Counter Terrorist unit in the world, participated in and led combat operations in Operation Just Cause in Panama, and played a key role in planning and leading Special Operations support to US responses to various contingencies in Africa and Bosnia.

His wife Mary Anne Bradley Schoultz has been his partner in this adventure for nearly 30 years. Their oldest son Brad is a SEAL officer serving in Germany, their other son Patrick and their daughter Roberta are both working in San Diego.

He is currently the Director of the Master of Science in Global Leadership program in the School of Business Administration at the University of San Diego
